Picketing Night Club Is Malted

NEW YORK (AP) — Three years of union picketing outside the Stork Club has been ordered stopped by a federal judge using the new Landrum-Griffin labor law.
U.S. Judge Archie O. Dawson granted a preliminary injunction against the picket line Tuesday at the request of the National Labor Relations Board.
The judge ruled that the NLRB had shown the Hotel and Restaurant Workers Union was picketing to force the Stork Club to recognize the union as bargaining agent for its employees.
Such picketing is banned by the Landrum-Griffin law.

Warns Against Trash Dumping on Highways

In a statement today, the Prosecuting Attorney's office issued the following warning concerning persons dumping trash on the highway.
"A serious penalty is provided for persons who willfully litter the highway with the carcasses of dead animals or any other sort of debris or refuse. Instances have been pointed out to us recently of responsible persons throwing trash on the highway, and littering the beauty of the countryside with nauseous and offensive matter. The penalty for such is very serious and we quote from the law concerning such matters:
"Any person or persons violating the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $100, nor more than $200."
The law goes on to provide that it shall be unlawful to place, deposit or dump or cause to be placed, deposited or dumped any garbage, swill, cans, bottles, papers, ashes, refuse, carcass of any dead animal, offal, trash or rubbish or any noxious, nauseous or offensive matter in or upon any public or private highway or road, including any portion of the right of way thereof or in or upon private property into or upon which the public is admitted by easement or license or any private property without the consent of the owner or in or upon any public park or other public property other than the property designated or set aside for such purpose by the governing board of body having charge thereof.
Deputy Prosecuting Attorney John L. Wilson said that complaints had been coming into his office at a very frequent rate. "Only in the last few weeks have persons volunteered to call names of persons seen throwing trash out of trucks and cars on the highway. If this continues, it will be the policy of this office to prosecute to the fullest extent of the law those persons found dumping trash and littering our highways."
The City of Hope provides a place for the dumping of trash and we feel that persons who purposely and maliciously litter the beauty of our countryside with trash and debris be prosecuted to the fullest extent and that will be the policy of this office in all matters of this type."

Home of Negro Student Is Bombed in L. R.

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A homemade bomb shook the home of a Negro student Tuesday night in a new outbreak of violence over integration of Little Rock's high schools.

Carlotta Walls, 16, and three other members of her family were asleep in the house but escaped injury.
She is one of five Negroes attending Central High School where integration of nine Negroes was enforced by federal troops in 1957 after mob violence broke out.

The blast was the first violence at the home of one of the Negro students and the first over integration since Labor Day bombings.

Police began a search for two cars reported cruising in the area shortly before the explosion near the front steps of Carlotta Walls' home in a predominantly Negro neighborhood.

Police said the explosive appeared to be two sticks of dynamite. Dynamite also was used in the Labor Day bombings which damaged school board offices, the office of Mayor Werner Knopp and Fire Chief Gann Nalley's station wagon.

Five men were arrested in those bombings. Three were convicted and given three-year prison sentences. A fourth, who pleaded guilty, was given a five-year term. The fifth still is to be tried.

Police moved in quickly Tuesday night. Police Chief Gene Smith, took personal charge of the investigation.

J. J. Casper, special FBI agent, joined Smith at the scene.
Smith called out all available policemen. An officer with a riot gun was posted at each of the two integrated high schools and at the homes of seven other Negroes.

Forrest City Building Loss Is $100,000

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP) — A raging fire gutted a downtown business building early today. Damage was estimated unofficially at more than $100,000.
No one was injured in the fire of unknown origin which swept the two-story Montgomery building.
Destroyed in the flames were 11 business firms and other enterprises, including the offices of the Forrest City Chamber of Commerce.
A city patrolman turned in the alarm when he saw smoke pouring from the building, which covered about half a block.
Apparently no one was in the structure when the officer made the report about 5:30 a.m.
Firemen were unable to save the building. It burned to a brick shell.
The building was owned by Don Montgomery, a Forrest City wholesale oil dealer.
Besides the Chamber of Commerce, the building housed the district office of the Internal Revenue Service, the district office of the Employment Security Division and their firms and agencies.

Violent, Unseasonal Weather Hits Wide Sections of Nation

Wind in State Leaves 5 Hurt, Houses Levelled

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A tornado slashed across the small farming community of Fitzhugh in Woodruff County last night and crumpled nine houses. Sheriff's officers reported eight persons were injured.

Eyewitnesses told how the black funnel of the twister hit the area with a roar and snatched houses away.

The funnel's advance was lighted eerily by bursts of lightning. Many residents in the community of 200 cowered in storm cellars as the tornado ripped a destructive swath.

Elsewhere in Arkansas, violent thunderstorms caused widespread but fairly minor damage. Two deaths resulted from a high wind which knocked a tree onto the cab of a truck at Dermott.

Rain accompanied the twister which battered Fitzhugh.

The office of Sheriff Jesse Pendegrist at Augusta reported that none of the eight persons injured in the storm apparently was in serious condition. First reports had said four persons were injured seriously and that only six houses were destroyed.

Teris Whitehead, one of those who lost his home, gave a graphic account of the twister's onslaught. He said about 20 persons gathered in a storm cellar at the home of Ed Cossey, himself among them.

"Cossey and I stood outside watching the thing approach," he told a newsmen. "We could see it."

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — A schoolbus loaded with rural youngsters, a gasoline tanker and a passenger car collided near here today, the sheriff's office reported.

The school-bound bus was from the Canyon Ferry Dam community.

Three ambulances from Helena answered the first call at about 8:20 a.m. but the sheriff's office said it was not until after 9 a.m. that there was a second call, for additional stretchers.

No Immediate Letup From Snow and Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation took a breather from violent weather today — from snow, sleet, hail, choking dust storms and tornado winds.

Only very small sections of the country missed nature's display of wintry power.

The stormy weather accounted for at least 11 deaths across the nation.

Texas was lashed by clouds of blinding dust which were whipped across a 600-mile stretch by hurricane-like winds. The storm caused at least three deaths, including one child who was blown to death under a bus. Damage estimates ran into thousands of dollars.

At Texarkana the winds toppled a 12-foot high brick wall, crushing 11 automobiles, but causing no injuries. Trailer homes were ripped apart at Odessa and a private plane crashed near Alpine, killing a San Antonio man.

Texas temperatures were unseasonably warm with McAllen in the Rio Grande valley reporting 96 and Dallas 87.

Arkansas was battered by violent thunderstorms. One tornado at Arkadelphia caused minor damage, but through the state damage was relatively light.

Two men were killed at Dermott when the storm knocked a tree onto the cab of their truck. Heavy rains accompanied the winds in most of Arkansas.

At many Pacific Coast points gale warnings remained flying today and the forecasters looked for another big storm Thursday.

The 48-hour storm — during which howling winds, snow and rain hammered northern California — tapered off a bit today, but winds still were dangerous.

The storm left millions of dollars in damage to homes, piers, boats, a lighthouse and other buildings as 40-foot waves battered the shores.

Off San Francisco, two ocean-going tugs and crewmen battled to save a powerless wine ship threatened with destruction on the beach. The ship, carrying 24

Presbyterian Men Here Lag in Contest

The Hope Presbyterian men's Sunday School Class reported an attendance of 57 last Sunday, but this was not good enough to top the 65 reported by the Presbyterians of Prescott.

The local campaign in the 11 week contest between the two men's classes, was launched here with a breakfast sponsored by Franklin McCarty and William Duckett. These two men promised another complimentary breakfast on the Sunday following a reported attendance of 75.

Lester Hobbs, a former Hope Presbyterian who represents a Little Rock meat packing company and resides in Little Rock, urged the class to establish an attendance of 80 as a goal. As an added incentive he said he would furnish a prize steak for a dinner following the Sunday when the class first reaches the goal of 80.

Next Sunday will be "Friendship Sunday" and each member will endeavor to bring at least one friend. Judge James Plunkett will teach the lesson.

The contest will end on Easter with an extra point given for a member who attends each Sunday for 11 weeks. It will be credited with 66 points. If he misses a Sunday, he starts back at 1 point again.

million gallons of bulk wine, was en route to Houston, Tex.

Some 200 persons were ordered removed during the night from Slinson Beach area near San Francisco after the coast guard warned of high-sweeping waves.

Forecasters warned that today's diminishing winds would be stepped up again Thursday, as a new storm sweeps in off the Pacific.

The 11 deaths attributed to the stormy elements included 4 in California, 3 in Texas and 2 each in Iowa and Arkansas.

A storm which struck southeastern Wisconsin during the night

continued during the day, and plastered the Wisconsin-Illinois border with 10 inches of snow. Forty-mile-an-hour winds made visibility unusually bad and fresh snow piled high shortly after plows made some clearance.

Snow and cold weather cut deep into the Midwest and heavy snow warnings went out for an area from lower Michigan through northern portions of Indiana and Illinois into southeastern Iowa and Wisconsin. Cold wave warnings were out from Iowa and Missouri into Kansas and Oklahoma. Rain and snow were due to hit the north Atlantic states.

About the only areas unscathed by the elements were Florida and parts of the Southwest.

Temperatures in most of the snow belt were in the 20-30 degree range.

Violent weather, wintry and unseasonal hammered wide sections of the nation today.

Not much letup appeared immediately from the snowy, rainy, windy and cold weather.

A rash of storms erupted Tuesday in parts of the Southwest, West, South and Midwest. They headed into the Northeast, along the Atlantic seaboard and into the southern Gulf region.

At least 11 deaths were attributed to the stormy weather.

The weather, varied for the winter season but generally quite miserable, was in the form of rain, sleet, hail, snow, thunderstorms, tornadoes, dust storms, lightning and cold and hot.

About the only areas with clear skies were in Florida and in parts of the Southwest.

Tornado winds lashed areas in Texas and Oklahoma, stirring up dust storms. Violent winds pounded sections of Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois, hit by thunderstorms. They were strong in Midwest areas which were pelted by snow, sleet and rain.

Property damage in the storm-battered areas mounted into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The 11 deaths attributed to the stormy elements included 4 in California, 3 in Texas and 2 each in Arkansas and Iowa.

Wind-swept 40-foot waves in the Pacific pounded coastal areas of northern California and Oregon, forcing more families from their homes. The world's largest wine tanker, the seven-million-dollar Angelo Petri, was adrift off San Francisco's Golden Gate.

Snow blanketed the Midwest. Gustly winds piled up huge drifts across the prairie lands and in the towns and cities from the Dakotas into southern Lower Michigan. Many secondary roads were closed. So were some main highways. Scores of motorists were stranded.

Four to six inches of fresh snow fell from central, South Dakota across most of eastern Nebraska and southern Iowa. Heavy snow warnings were posted from eastern Iowa across northwest and extreme northern Illinois, east-northeast into southern Lower Michigan.

Wind in State

the black funnel in the lightning flashes and hear the roar. It was headed straight for us!"

Whitehead said at the last minute, he and Cossey dived inside the cellar.

"We nearly lost the door of the cellar before we could pull it shut," he recalled. "A few minutes later when we looked out, Cossey's house had collapsed and two others had disappeared."

The two other houses had been occupied by the family of C. H. Conner and a family named Wesson. They are Negroes. Some of the injured were in those houses.

"How any of them lived through it I'll never know," Whitehead said.

A furious storm tore into the small farming community of Fitzhugh in Woodruff County last night and smashed six houses to kindling. Five persons were injured, four of them seriously.

Elsewhere in the state, violent thunderstorms caused two deaths and widespread though relatively minor damage.

Most of the 200-odd inhabitants of Fitzhugh, five miles north of Augusta, fled to storm shelters as the wind howled into town.

"It had to be a tornado," said one man.

The 30-minute storm was punctuated by dazzling bursts of lightning. Heavy rain fell.

Ed Cossey and three other members of his family huddled in their storm shelter as the house above them was ripped away. None of the Cosseys was injured.

Five other families were less fortunate. They did not make it to storm cellars and some of the members of these families were injured by debris as their houses collapsed.

Besides Cossey's, houses occupied by the families of C. H. Conner, Buster Wesson, Teris Whitehead, Burk Halley and an unidentified householder were destroyed. Cossey and Whitehead are white, the others are Negroes.

Conner, his wife and one of their children were injured. Two other Negroes whose names were not available immediately also were injured.

All except Conner's wife were described as in serious condition.

Mrs. Louise Norwood, home service agent of the Red Cross at Augusta, said the wreckage of the six houses was "scattered like kindling all over Fitzhugh."

She said the storm knocked down a number of trees and one fallen tree temporarily blocked the White Lake Road at Fitzhugh.

Another of the storms that rolled across Arkansas was termed a tornado. This one caused some property damage in southeastern Arkadelphia but there were no reported injuries.

A storm destroyed a private airplane at the Batesville Municipal Airport. The craft was owned by an Air Force man away on duty.

A big screen at a Batesville drive-in theater was toppled. House roofs in some sections of Batesville were damaged. Mrs. Doris Kelly of Batesville and several other persons said they spotted a tornado funnel just south of Newark. She said it did not touch the ground.

Winds heavily damaged the Locust Grove Methodist Church, 10 miles southwest of Batesville.

were broken. Police Lt. Carl Jackson said Mrs. Walls, Charlotte, and two younger daughters, Loupania, 11, and Tina, 6, were jolted awake by the explosion. Walls himself was visiting his father several blocks away.

Son of Late Connie Mack Succumbs

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Roy Mack, a former owner of the Philadelphia Athletics baseball team and a son of the late Connie Mack died today of a heart attack in suburban Bryn Mawr Hospital. He was 69.

Mack and his brother, Earle, along with their father and other stockholders of the team sold out to Arnold Johnson of Chicago in 1953. Johnson moved the team to Kansas City, Mo.

Roy served officially as vice president of the club and handled the business end. He continued in a salaried capacity for the Kansas City team for a period of years after the sale.

A foot square hole was torn in the exterior of a brick wall. All the windows on that side of the one story home were shattered. Bricks were blown 100 feet and a few windows in neighboring homes

DOROTHY DIX

Wife Found Lipstick on Husband's Shirt

Dear Dorothy Dix:
Will you help my husband? Several months ago he started going out one night a week drinking because, as he said, he had nothing else to do. Then it got to be two nights, then three and now it's every night. Several nights he didn't come home at all. I found lipstick on his shirt. He said he had been to a dance, was too drunk to drive, so slept in the car. We have three children and are expecting another. I'm the kind who just wants to make a good home for my man. I know if we break up, I'll never marry again and four children will be out of a father.—Forsaken.

Dear Forsaken: Though hardly commendable, it is quite natural for a husband to become a reckless bar fly and to play foolery with some small-time enchantress, during his wife's pregnancy. Let's face it—most pregnant women look like beach balls in unmade beds. I don't blame you for feeling below par, with three children and a home to look after (no, but to hold a man, even the best, at a time like this, you've got to make the effort to look extra special. Ten to one your husband will come home wearing sack cloth and ashes. If and when this happens, forgive his peccadilloes. You might find my leaflet on Alcoholism useful. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope for it.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
I am a senior in high school and have been going with a boy in the Navy one year. We plan to marry next July. Now I've not received a letter from him for over two weeks but I still keep writing to him. Last time I didn't hear from him for over a month. I'm down in the dumps for I love him with all my heart but I must do something to straighten things out. What do you think?—Little Joe.

Dear Little Joe: Try the silent treatment. Tough though it will be—if he doesn't respond, dump him.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
The man I'm married to loves me, but I just don't love him enough. When routine gets the better of me the first thing I do for excitement is involve myself for a few sweet nothings, a kiss or two, in a flirtation with the opposite sex. I'm always sorry but can't seem to help it. What can I do to change?—Miserable.

Dear Miserable: Maybe you're a born flirt. I've known many of these tickled ones—men as well as women. They're charmers, but when it comes to love, inconstant as a weather-vane. You had better reexamine your inner personality and, perhaps seek psychiatric help.

Send your problem to DOROTHY DIX. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address her in care of this newspaper.

Sailors vs Sea for Big Wine Tanker

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sailors fought the sea today for the seven-million-dollar Angela Petri, the world's largest wine tanker.

A powerful storm that raged in from the Pacific Tuesday left the 520-foot, 21,000-ton tanker powerless and rudderless—adrift off the Golden Gate.

Her anchors finally caught bottom 3.7 miles from the San Francisco coast.

The Coast Guard responded to the Petri's distress calls and began evacuating crewmen by helicopter. Fourteen of the 40-man crew had been lifted from the heavily rolling vessel when Capt. Edward A. Lohn Jr., of San Mateo, Calif., decided he might be able to save his ship and cargo—2 1/2 million gallons of bulk wine.

Two Coast Guard cutters and two sea-going tugs steamed to the Petri's aid.

The storm was still raging. Waves 30 to 40 feet high were crashing over the rolling decks. The Petri, with a 30 foot draft, was in less than 40 feet of water. Two sand bars were nearby.

One of the tugs, the Sea Cloud, fired a tow line to the tanker. While the second tug, the Sea Wolf, was preparing to fire a second tow line, the first line parted.

The Sea Wolf got its tow line in the Petri and it held. But Sea

Finds Role of a Star Is Not Easy

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If you don't think it takes rugged determination to become a film star, consider the case of George Peppard.

George has made it, or so the previewers proclaim. I thought he was a cliché for stardom three weeks ago when he played a lead in "The Strange One." But the film was such a bomb that it nearly exploded his acting career.

Right from the start, George had no easy time being an actor, he says. The start was in his native Detroit, and he claims that is desert country for anyone interested in the arts.

George left Detroit for the Marines and later was gridded from Purdue in fine arts. He worked in all kinds of jobs around Pittsburgh, Pa., and made his stage debut at the playhouse there. He went on to New York and the Actor's Studio.

But the important showcasing in "The Strange One" didn't do it for him. In fact, the sour smell of failure almost shattered his confidence. Producer Sam Spiegel didn't pick up his option.

He reached such a low point that he even applied for a callie's license in New York and worked as a mechanic in a motorcycle shop. "It was a good thing for me, really," he says now. "It made me realize that I could not be happy doing anything but acting."

His luck changed with TG shows like "Little Mono of St. Alban" and "Suspicion," and the hit play, "The Pleasure of His Company." He did "Pork Chop Hill" with Gregory Peck, then MGM tabbed him to play Robert Mitchum's illegitimate son in "Home From the Hill." He's now doing retakes of "The Subterraneans," playing a bantank opposite Leslie Caron.

Cloud was unable to send another line over and the Sea Wolf was unable to haul the tanker through the gale alone.

Capt. V. F. Hellmer, commander of the cutter Taney, then decided to shoot a line from his 327-foot vessel and attempt to haul the Petri back into San Francisco Bay. Approaches were difficult and the Petri was having trouble raising its anchors.

Feeling Is Mixed on Tight Money Issue

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Easier money is taking on more than just a seasonal aspect. Belief is growing today that the tight money squeeze may have hit its most painful point about the time the U. S. Treasury offered its magic lives.

This view isn't universal by any means. Many banks complain that they still don't have enough funds to meet all the demand for loans. Others look for money to tighten up again as business activity picks up and better building weather increases the demand for mortgage financing.

But today's hurting isn't anything like it was four weeks or so ago. Interest rates are slipping to the joy of borrowers if not of lenders.

The seasonal factors are still with us. Money gets more plentiful after Christmas because funds borrowed to finance holiday production and trade are being repaid.

But the demand for new loans this year isn't as high as expected. Some businesses may not be booming as anticipated. Others found money in their own tills to take care of their needs. Inventory rebuilding could be slowing down.

President Eisenhower's renewed pledge to fight further inflation took a lot of steam out of the notion that a lot more of the same was inevitable.

The Federal Reserve Board still is watching and gives no sign of changing to a really easy money policy.

But the public apparently has changed its thinking. That seems to have had a lot to do with the big drop in stock prices and the moderate but distinct rise in bond prices, which don't yield as much as they did just six weeks ago.

Talk of raising bank interest charges—almost universal early in January—isn't rife any more. On the other hand, banks have plenty of demand for loans and haven't been talking about cutting their charges, either.

The Treasury will have to come into the money market many times this year to refund maturing security issues, and each time it will be competing with state and local governments and corporations seeking funds.

But if President Eisenhower's budget ideas prevail, the Treasury won't be seeking new money as it did last year to finance a federal deficit, and to that extent it won't be feeding inflationary fires.

Khrushchev Leaves for India Visit

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev took off today for visits to India and three other Asian countries, trying to build up Soviet prestige and to match the impression President Eisenhower made in the area.

Khrushchev, members of his family and a group of top Soviet officials boarded the big turboprop Ilyushin airliner after greeting diplomats and some 300 Muscovites who braved bitter cold weather to see them off.

Khrushchev's plane was to refuel in Tashkent, then fly over the Hindu Kush and Himalaya mountains to land in balmy New Delhi Thursday morning.

Mrs. Khrushchev, who is not going on this trip, was not seen among the wellwishers at the flag-decked airfield.

With Khrushchev were his two daughters, Julia and Rada, and the latter's husband, Alexei Adzhubel, editor of the government newspaper Izvestia. He was also accompanied by a granddaughter, Julia, whose father was killed in World War II.

Khrushchev will remain in India until next Tuesday, then push on to Burma for a brief stop. On Feb. 18 he goes to Indonesia, where he is expected to spend a week before returning home with a stopover in Afghanistan.

The Soviet press has been full of articles for the past two months telling how much aid the Soviet Union has given to India.

Without comparing Soviet aid with the more extensive help given by the United States, the Soviet government has made a great show of steel mills, chemical plants and oil refineries built or planned for India with Soviet help.

But the visit to India will pose problems for Khrushchev. Indian officials feel he is the only one who could induce China to give ground in the bitter dispute over the frontier between India and Tibet. This is expected to be one of the main topics Prime Minister Nehru will take up with his Soviet guest.

Dutch Radioman to Trial for Slaying

BOSTON (AP)—A handsome Dutch radio operator goes on trial for his life today charged with killing an alleged slipboard paramour.

Willem Van Rie, 31, of Utrecht, the Netherlands, has been in jail since last September in the death of Lynn Kauffman, 23, a pretty divorcee from Chicago.

Conviction could mean death in the electric chair, but Van Rie insists a jury will free him. His wife, Nella, 31, agrees. "We will be home by tulip time," she vows.

Miss Kauffman's nearly nude, battered body was found on the shore of a Boston harbor island last September, the day after Van Rie's ship, the Dutch freighter

The state charges that she and Van Rie engaged in a 44-day shipboard romance that began in Singapore and ended with her death. Van Rie says there was no affair, no murder.

The first order of business in the trial is to pick a jury of 12. Two of the jurors will be alternates.

We wish to express our deepest thanks to every one who remembered us with flowers, food and cards during the recent death of our mother, Mrs. Amanda Wilson.

Bobcats Return to Loop Play at Arkadelphia

Following a non-title tilt at Ashdown last night which the Bobcats won by a 41-26 score, the Hope boys get back into conference play Friday at Arkadelphia.

Larry Walton tossed in 11 points and Glen Calhoun 9 as the Bobcats broke a halftime tie with the Panthers and went on to win the game.

The Bobcats are currently in third spot in the district, behind Fairview and Smackover.

But the Hope Juniors are all by themselves in league standings with a very impressive 8-0 record. Their nearest rival, the Fairview Juniors, has a 4-3 record.

Sky Is the Limit for Big Wilt (The Stilt) Who Is Fantastic Pro Scorer

By DAVE DILES
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP)—The sky's the limit for skyscraper Wilt ("The Stilt") Chamberlain, newly crowned champion of National Basketball Assn. scorers and rebounders.

Fabulous, phenomenal, fantastic—call the 7-foot-2 rookie anything you like—Chamberlain has scored more points in a single season than the old crown-wearers ever dreamed was possible.

Chamberlain poured in 41 points Tuesday night in a losing cause. His Philadelphia Warriors went down to a 122-113 defeat at the hands of the Detroit Pistons.

His 57-game total — he missed one game with the flu — is 2,134. This is 29 points better than the old record set last season by Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks.

Pettit set his mark in 72 games. The NBA hiked its schedule to 75 games this year, so Chamberlain, 22, has 18 more games in which to build the record. At the rate he is going, he will score in the neighborhood of 2,818 points — not counting playoffs.

The gangling recruit also established a single-season rebounding record, pulling down 17 for a 1,614 total, two better than the mark set last season by Boston's Bill Russell.

A flock of ex-scoring champions were on hand to see Wilt's record-busting performance, in addition to the paying crowd of 8,201 that gave him a standing ovation when he was presented with the basketball.

It sounds a little far-fetched, but Wilt really wasn't at his best in his record-setting performance. A collision in Sunday's game at St. Louis jammed several teeth into his lower jaw and the big fellow has had practically no sleep, no solid food and only three glasses of orange juice since.

He could barely talk after the game. Just enough to say "I'm just playing basketball. I'm not trying to prove anything."

New Bass Record Is 9 lbs, 10 oz.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Game and Fish Commission has recognized a new record largemouth bass.

The 9 pound, 10 ounce monster was caught in Lake Norfolk by Dan Mullen of Brigleton, Mo.

The commission recently threw out its unofficial size records and began recognizing catches only if a game warden witnesses the weighing. Baxter County Warden Jeff Hackler checked Mullen's fish.

Pollution Bill May Touch Off Battle

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House-passed, 900-million-dollar anti-pollution bill may formally touch off the 1960 battle of the budget between President Eisenhower and the Democratic-controlled Congress.

Passed Tuesday by the House, the Senate-House compromise far exceeds the President's proposals. It may be the first big bill to draw a veto this year.

Senate action may not come until next week or later, but approval by that body is almost certain since the Senate previously had passed a measure almost as expensive.

The House acted by voice vote, without audible dissent. Republicans didn't oppose the bill, although they said they didn't approve it. Their attitude apparently was that the sooner it reached the White House the sooner it could be vetoed.

A compromise of separate measures passed last year by the Senate and the House, the bill would raise to 900 million dollars the present ceiling of 500 million on federal grants for construction.

THE LADY AND THE GIANT
By Clarence Budington Kelland

CHAPTER XXVII

I was catechized by Mr. Dewitt in a manner that made me respect his abilities as a cross-examiner, but, in actuality, there were few definite answers I could give him. I am quite sure he thought I was evasive and, contradictorily enough, I became convinced that the less I told him the more I rose in his estimation.

"For so young a man," he said to me, "you can be most skillfully closed-mouthed. It is a quality I admire. Generally when there is meat in a nut I am able to crack it. You serve Madam Janeway well. Should I or this bank ever have legal business in Syracuse, I shall hear you in mind, Mr. Applegate."

"I thank you, sir," I said, and was much set up by his compliment.

He rose and went out into the banking room, returning presently with a sealed envelope of heavy paper, which he pushed across his desk to me. I had already, according to the instructions, delivered to him Madam's packet of securities.

"You will sign this," he said, handing me a paper which I read carefully. It was a receipt for $125,000.

Taking a fresh piece of paper I wrote a receipt in language I preferred. Instead of acknowledging that I was taking this great sum

Preacher in Bombing Plot Tells Story

ATLANTA (AP) — A Baptist preacher—target of a bombing attempt by one of his deacons—today gave a grand jury his version of the bizarre plot, described by the deacon as a love triangle.

The Rev. J. T. Robinson's wife accompanied him to the court house but did not herself go before the jurors.

The clergyman spent about 20 minutes with the grand jury. He and his wife, Velma, then hurriedly left.

The Robinsons have been in seclusion since investigators Monday released a confession of the deacon saying that he put a home-made bomb in his pastor's car because he and Velma were lovers. They sometimes held trysts in the church annex, he said.

In currency, I wrote, cautiously that I acknowledged receipt of a sealed envelope purporting to contain this money.

Mr. Dewitt read it and again chuckled. "Self-preservation is the first law of nature," he said, and tore open the envelope. "Count it," he said shortly.

The sum was correct. "Now sign," he directed.

I did so, and in return asked his receipt for Madam's stocks and bonds. The package containing them lay at hand, listing on its outside its contents. His receipt had been prepared, listing the securities described. He tossed it across to me, to my surprise, did not open the package to make sure of its contents.

I took a train home, feeling an uncomfortable sense of responsibility for the huge sum of money I carried. On arrival, I took it at once to Madam's home, where I was admitted to her office.

"Madam," said Oscar in his harsh voice, "will be down in a minute."

On her desk, open as if she had been reading from it, was the big scrapbook which she had shown me. I was able to read the headline of an article pasted upon the page, though the printing was upside down to me.

"SENTENCED FOR FORGERY," it said. And its subheadline was: "Woman Given Light Sentence for Clever Crime and Impersonation."

More I could not make out, nor did I have a chance to turn the book so I could read the smaller type. Madam came in, smiling graciously.

"All went well?" she said.

"There was no hitch," I said.

"Here is the money."

"For which you gave a receipt?"

"After counting it," I said preening myself on my caution.

She became suddenly very still. It was clear she was displeased that I had insisted upon making a count of the bills.

"Hereafter, Orrin," she said, "your monthly retainer will be $100."

"This was pleasant hearing and I walked across James Street to our front steps. Lottie's front door opened and she called to me, and when I reached her porch she said, 'I've been watching for you. Come on in. There's popcorn and molasses taffy.'"

I went inside and removed my overcoat.

She was no princess now, but a little girl with sticky fingers, chewing almost greedily upon a mouthful of candy.

"Help yourself," she said indiscreetly. And then: "I love to ride on trains. Do you love to ride on trains?"

"I don't count it an amusement," I said.

She licked her fingers and made a face at me. "My, my. Important man of business," she said.

"Well," I answered indiscreetly, for I had no objection to magnifying myself, "it was pretty important. I brought back more money than you've ever seen."

"Tomorrow," she said, "you will buy me a present. But what were you all pucker up for when I saw you cussing the street? What worried you?"

"Why," I said, "for a moment Madam was displeased with me, and I couldn't figure out why. She asked if I'd given Mr. Dewitt a receipt for the money. And I told her I had, but not until he had opened the envelope and allowed me to count it."

Lottie leaned forward and her eyes snapped as she peered at me like some saucy little bird.

"And did Mr. Dewitt open his envelope?"

"No," I said.

"Perhaps," Lottie said, "Madam was mad because you set an example. Because you might have made him think it would be a good idea to do what you did and look inside the envelope. And I think Mr. Dewitt shouldn't be the head of a big bank. It'd be altogether easy to pull the wool over his eyes."

"Nonsense," I exclaimed.

"I'll bet that was it."

"But this," I said, "was a transaction with Madam Janeway."

"Yes," Lottie said with a little grimace, "that's what Mr. Dewitt thought. All impressed by her and her grand airs and her extravagances and her beauty — and her nasty old Dan! Drew."

This Alligator Didn't Count on

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"I never thought I'd come home and find an alligator in the yard," said Joyce Tucker.

She and her husband Marlon discovered the reptile after returning from a weekend trip. The couple restrained their dog from attacking the intruder.

Mrs. Tucker thought the alligator might go away if they ignored him. He didn't. So they called the animal shelter. Two men captured the 3-foot, 10-pound beast with a looped rope on a stick.

No one knows where it came from.

Disc Jockeys Got $50 Outside Pay

WASHINGTON (AP)—House investigators were told today that two Cleveland disc jockeys were paid $50 a week for each of a selected group of records they played on the air.

The assertion—in an affidavit—was the first direct charge of payments at an inquiry by the House Legislative Oversight Committee into payola — under-the-counter payments for plugging records.

The affidavit was read by Robert Lishman, committee counsel, while one of the disc jockeys—Joseph Finan—was on the witness stand. Finan denied any such arrangement.

Myron O. Burneson, manager of Mainline Cleveland, an independent distributor for RCA Victor Records, signed the affidavit which named Finan and Wesley Hopkins, both fired in December by radio-television station KYW in Cleveland.

In the affidavit, Burneson swore that Allen Clark, a field representative for RCA Victor told him Finan and Hopkins would play selected RCA records for $50 a week for "each record or release so favored."

Finan denied Burneson's statements, saying his only connection with Mainline was to advise on what records were good or bad.

An orchestra leader testified earlier that a charity party in a Boston suburb in 1958 was basically a record promotion scheme.

Lester Lanin complained to the committee that Don DuMont, New England distributor for Epic Records, a division of Columbia Records, offered him $1,000 to play at the charity party in Brooklyn, Sept. 26, 1958, but actually paid him only $400.

Under questioning, he at first insisted the party was only a charity affair.

But, pressed for details, he said it basically was a record promotion scheme.

Asked if Epic Records was involved, Lanin replied "I would presume so."

The federal courts called segregation in schools, railroad waiting rooms, and similar while segregation is by federal legislation "expressly condoned in the voting place."
